ACTIVE WAR FLARING ON MANCHURIAN FRONT

RED ARMY FORCES ROUTING CHINESE COLUMN

LATTER, SAYS SOVIET, ATTACKED WITH ARTILLERY AND MACHINE GUNS

CLASHES AT GRADEVOKA-POL-TASK, DALAINOR, POGRAH-NITCHNAYA

By EUGENE LYONS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, Sept. 9.—Active warfare has broken out on the Manchurian frontier where Chinese and Russian troops are massed, the Soviet government announced today.

The announcement said Red army forces routed a Chinese column which suddenly attacked with artillery and machine guns in the vicinity of Gradevoka-Pol-task, in Nokolok-Ussurisk province. No casualties were reported in this attack.

Reports from the troubled zone also told of Soviet air attacks between Pogranichnaya and Suifenho. Dispatches said five Soviet fliers soaring over Pogranichnaya, near the eastern terminal of the Chinese eastern railway dropped bombs injuring 30 persons.

The Soviet government announced at the same time that other Chinese aggressions had taken place, chiefly against Soviet shipping in the Amur and Ussuri rivers. Sixteen miles south of Blagoveshensk, the announcement said, the Chinese attacked a boat, the Lyeszag.

Several other raids and attacks upon Russian shipping were alleged together with reports of additional arrests of Russian citizens in Harbin, Manchuria. The announcement added that the situation was becoming constantly sharpened.

Harbin, Manchuria, Sept. 9.—Clashes between Soviet and Chinese troops in the vicinity of Dalainor, near the western end of the Chinese eastern railway, took place over the week-end, it was officially announced here today.

"Our patrols clashed briefly with the Russians near Dalainor," the communiqué said. "The Red troops were scattered after an exchange of rifle fire."

Tokio, Sept. 9.—Soviet troops fired on Chinese patrols 8 miles east of Pogranichnaya Sunday morning, the war office announced today. Twenty-eight Chinese were wounded. The extent of the Russian casualties was unknown.

Soviet airplanes appeared over Pogranichnaya at 3:30 P. M., the same day and dropped 20 bombs. The Chinese returned the fire. One Chinese was killed.

Harbin, Manchuria, Sept. 9.—Chinese losses in the border fighting on Sunday totalled 500, including deserters, it was announced today. Pogranichnaya was deserted by its residents.

Manchuli, Sept. 9.—Ten Soviet armored cars appeared at the border twice today and exchanged fire with the Chinese.

The armored cars first were seen at 10 A. M., and after a brief round of firing they left. They returned at 5:30 P. M. and resumed their attack.

OLD FASHIONED MONKEY WRENCH DROPPED IN GEARS

VARE CASE DEFTLY SLIPPED INTO TARIFF MACHINERY IN SENATE

GEO. W. NORRIS DEMANDS IMMEDIATE SETTLEMENT OF OLD DISPUTE

Washington, Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—An old fashioned monkey wrench, the Vare case, was dropped deftly into the tariff machinery in the senate today when George W. Norris, the farm bloc senator from Nebraska, demanded immediate settlement of the three-year-old dispute over seating Senator-elect William S. Vare of Pennsylvania.

As a strong opponent of the tariff bill, which he believes will not bring further relief to agriculture, Norris proposed a resolution denying Vare his seat.

The resolution has the highest privilege and supercedes even the pending tariff bill. Its effect will be to delay indefinitely the debate upon the pending business, unless republican leaders find some means of sidetracking it.

Republican Floor Leader Watson managed to block it for the day when he requested time to look it over. Norris agreed to the brief respite but only after he had obtained a ruling from Vice-President Curtis that his resolution was bigger business under the senate rules than the tariff bill, allowing him to get it in place of the tariff at any time.

The Vare resolution may lead to extended debate. The same coalition group which is fighting the tariff bill—the farm bloc members and the democrats—also are fighting against Vare.

FATAL SHOOTING OF HIGH SCHOOL BOY

DEPUTY SHERIFF OF ASHLAND, ALABAMA, NOW UNDER ARREST

Ashtand, Ala., Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—As a result of the fatal shooting of an 18-year-old high school boy as he and a companion allegedly sought a liquor cache, Deputy Sheriff Cecil Guthrie was under arrest today.

Guthrie claimed the shot that killed Clarence Bailey was fired accidentally as he and other deputies hid behind trees waiting to surprise the youths.

The shooting occurred yesterday in a stretch of woodland near here. Guthrie and Police Chief Alexander of Ashtand had previously found a gallon jug of whiskey cached in a dell. With other officers they watched nearby.

As the officers came from their hiding place, the youths fled, Guthrie said. Bailey was shot, according to the deputy, when Guthrie's revolver was discharged as he stumbled over a tree root. The other youth fled, and was not identified.

WAILING WALL IS SCENE OF ANOTHER STABBING AFFRAY

Jerusalem, Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—Many quarters of Jerusalem were in a high state of nervousness today as the result of another stabbing near the wailing wall.

A Jew, on his way to the wall to pray, was stabbed by an Arab and seriously wounded. He was removed to a hospital.

A similar occurrence took place on the Jaffa road. A trooper fired on the Arab assailant, and both the Arab and the Jew who he had stabbed were taken to a hospital.

Gruesome Caravan Carts Remains of 8 People From Scene of Air Liner's Fatal Plunge

CHARRED BODIES ARE REMOVED TO RESTING PLACE

OFFICIALS INVESTIGATE TO DETERMINE RESPONSIBILITY FOR AIR TRAGEDY

CORONER'S JURY ASSEMBLED AT THE ALMOST INACCESSIBLE MOUNTAIN SPOT

By FRANK FARLEY
(United Press Special Correspondent)

Gallup, N. M., Sept. 9.—The charred remains of seven men and a woman, victims of the crash of the air liner City of San Francisco into the side of Mount Taylor last Tuesday, were moved toward their final resting places today while officials began a series of investigations to determine responsibility for the latest tragedy of the air.

A gruesome caravan carted the remains of the five passengers and three crewmen from the scene of the liner's plunge, near the summit of Mount Taylor, over a precarious trail 20 miles to Grants.

The first official investigation of the crash came when a coroner's jury assembled at the almost inaccessible spot on Mount Taylor, around the strewn wreckage of the once proud air liner, peered at the burned bodies, the tangled mass of plane and rendered the routine verdict that the party of eight passengers came to their deaths as a result of an airplane accident.

Inspection of the wreckage led to the belief that the crew and passengers were killed instantly. The time of the disaster was set at 11:01 A. M. Tuesday by the fact that all the watches of the plane and its passengers were stopped at that hour.

The wreckage lay at the base of two great pine trees, where the explosion had occurred. The force of the blast threw pieces of machinery 50 yards and would have killed anyone who might have survived the crash. For 200 yards the wreckage of the wings and fuselage was strewn.

The machine and its three engines were blown to bits by the explosion and it was unlikely that the T. A. T. would attempt to salvage any parts. The metal parts were melted into a distorted tangle.

The great ship appeared to have been racing at an angle too low to permit of crossing and struck the mountain a side blow. First a lofty tree had been decapitated. Then the craft was thrown off its course and plunged through the tall trees, cutting off the pines as a moving machine would have trimmed meadow grass.

The terrifying plunge had ended against a rocky, timber-sprinkled ridge where the plane crashed and then exploded with a force that threw stones, branches and rocks in all directions.

There were eight burned bodies, only two of them not too badly seared to make identification possible. These were later given names through various articles, including rings and watches. The bodies were:

M. M. Campbell, Cincinnati; William H. Beers, Merrick, N. Y.; Harris Livermore, Boston; A. S. McGaffey, Albuquerque; Mrs. Cornia Raymond, Glendale, Calif., passengers; Chief Pilot J. B. Stowe; Co-Pilot Edwin A. Diestess, Courier C. F. Canfield, crew.

Charges that Chief Pilot J. B. Stowe did not want to leave Albuquerque at 10:10 A. M. last Tuesday because of adverse weather conditions but had taken the plane up on its fatal flight at the orders of his superiors, were made at the scene of the wreckage. Inspectors of the department of commerce were investigating this charge.

WALKER PARTY IS A WILD ONE

DOORS AND WINDOWS OF APARTMENT BROKEN; WOMAN BREAKS HER FOOT

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion of the world and a recent arrival in Hollywood, was arrested early today when police were called to quell an asserted wild party in an apartment.

Two detectives of the Hollywood station said Walker was mixing in a lively scrimmage in which three men and a young woman also participated.

Doors and windows of the apartment were broken and the young woman suffered a broken foot.

Walker and the three men were taken to the Hollywood station where the champion was charged with drunkenness, violation of the state dry law and disturbance of the peace.

Police who answered the call at the home of Dorothy Davis said all of the men must have possessed pugilistic ability. Furniture had been smashed and the rooms were blood spattered.

Ray Hallor, Arthur Houseman and Gordon Sweeney, Walker's fellow revellers, were booked on the same charges on which the champion was held.

The three were held for $250 bail.

FIVE KILLED IN WEEK-END MOTOR MISHAPS

SCORE OR MORE INJURED THROUGHOUT MINNESOTA DURING PERIOD

CENTRAL MINNESOTA SUFFERS THE BRUNT OF ACCIDENTS INCURRED

St. Paul, Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—Even as rain and the first cold snap of the autumn brought diminished motor car traffic, five persons were killed and a score or more injured in automobile accidents throughout Minnesota over the week-end.

Central Minnesota suffered the brunt of the fatal mishaps with the deaths and serious injuries reported from Elk River, Sauk Rapids and Ortonville.

The dead: Theodore Krasky, St. Cloud, killed near Sauk Rapids when his automobile collided with a truck driven by Alvin McMahon, Crookston.

August Benosky, a passenger in Krasky's car.

Henry Adelman, Sauk Rapids, killed in a head-on collision four miles north of Elk River.

Ethel Davis, Minneapolis, a passenger in Adelman's car.

Earl Korte, Big Stone, S. D., killed near Ortonville when his car struck a tree at the roadside.

Two companions of Korte were injured in the crash which occurred at 3 A. M. Sunday and seven persons were injured in the collision at Elk River.

The injured in the Elk River accident were: A. M. Lund, Minneapolis; Harold Lund, his son; Milton Adelman, 11, Sauk Rapids; Mrs. Henry Adelman, his mother; Elmer Adelman, 17, Melvin Adelman, 14, and Arnold Rustad, Sauk Rapids.

BRITISH STEAMER HIGHLAND PRIDE GOES ON ROCKS

Vigo, Spain, Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—The British steamer Highland Pride, en route to Buenos Aires, went on the rocks near the Cies islands, off the mouth of the river Vigo early today.

Lifeboats were launched and 68 passengers and 98 of the crew made their way safely to Bayona, from where they were taken to Vigo. The captain and one of the crew remained aboard.

Heavy rains, accompanied by hail and winds of cyclonic velocity, swept over the south central and western sections of Oklahoma early today, leveling houses, farm buildings and doing widespread damage to livestock and crops.

Reports coming in over crippled communication lines placed damage at approximately $500,000.

GRAF ZEPPELIN TO ATTEMPT NON-STOP TRIP AROUND WORLD

Berlin, Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—The next major flight of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin will be an attempted non-stop flight around the world in 14 days, dispatches from Friedrichshafen said today. Officials of the Zeppelin works, according to dispatches, plan to have the giant dirigible refueled in the air.

GAVE HIS LIFE FOR BOX OFFICE RECEIPTS STUNT

Shawnee, Okla., Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—Ahlin Rhuberg, usher, gave his life for box office receipts.

To attract patrons to the midnight show here Saturday, Rhuberg faked a holdup and rushed away pursued by a fellow employee firing blank cartridges.

Patrolman W. J. Jones, alert to holdup criminals of an oil town and unadvised of the stunt, joined in the fight with real ammunition. He brought down the usher with a bullet. Rhuberg died last night.

TEXTILE WORKERS LITIGATION ENDS IN A MISTRIAL

END OCCURS ON ACCOUNT OF COLLAPSE OF ONE OF JURORS

JUDGE MAKES SOME REFERENCE TO "INSANE MAN IN JURY BOX"

Charlotte, N. C., Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—The trial of 16 textile workers charged with murder of Police Chief Aderholt of Gastonia, was ended in a mistrial here today on account of the collapse of one of the jurors.

Judge M. V. Barnhill ordered the mistrial, but a few minutes later he suspended his order, while defense attorneys conferred on ways and means of averting such a collapse.

Judge Barnhill took this action after J. G. Campbell, newspaper vendor and one of the jurors, suffered a nervous collapse on his way to today's session, which would have opened the third week of the spectacular trial.

"I would rather these defendants go free than try them with an insane man in the jury box," Judge Barnhill said.

Arthur Garfield Hays, defense lawyer, immediately asked that the charges against the three women and 13 men defendants be reduced from first degree murder to manslaughter and for admittance to bail.

Solicitor John Carpenter told the United Press he had asked Gov. Gardner to call another special term of court beginning Sept. 30 to try the case again.

The North Carolina statutes require drawing of a jury panel 20 days before the special term of superior court.

ROBBINS EXPECTED TO SURRENDER SOON

PRESIDENT OF TEN THOUSAND LAKES FUR FARM CHARGED WITH MULCTING INVESTORS

St. Paul, Sept. 9.—(U.P.)—Albert A. Robbins, president of the Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farm, which stockholders charged has mulcted investors of nearly $500,000 was expected to surrender today on a warrant for asserted violation of the state blue sky laws.

Robbins who last week was reported in Chicago, was said to have communicated with F. P. O'Malley, secretary of the concern on $1,000 bail, to the effect that he would surrender today to authorities at St. Peter.

Sheriff Charles J. Norman, of Nicollet county, where warrants were issued for officers of the fur farm, declared, however, that Robbins had not appeared there shortly before noon. Norman also awaited F. L. Ulm, salesman, for whom a warrant was issued. O'Malley was arrested here last week, taken to St. Peter, where he was arraigned and ordered to appear in Nicollet county district court on Oct. 8.

The allegedly illegal affairs of the company were brought into light after A. E. Chellisen, a stockholder, banged himself here, apparently under the impression that he had lost $4,500 of his savings.

SENATE TAKES UP TARIFF BILL IN EARNEST TODAY

PROMISES BEFORE NIGHT FIRST TEST VOTE ON PENDING REPUBLICAN RATE REVISION

GAUGE OF STRENGTH WILL COME IF VOTE IS REACHED ON SIMMONS RESOLUTION

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Sept. 9.—With new and heavier demands from the farm belt ringing in its ears, the senate convened today to take up the tariff bill in earnest, promising before night the first test vote on the pending republican rate revision measure.

The gauge of strength will come if a vote is reached on the Simmons resolutions proposing that the treasury department reveal for the farm bloc-democratic coalition, the income tax lists of profits and losses of corporations which have been seeking increased tariff rates in the pending bill on the ground they are not making enough money under the present protective law.

A canvass of the situation indicated the farm bloc and the democratic leaders can skirmish and if they do, the regulars are faced with defeat in their first effort to stem the coalition tide.

Overshadowing even its first test of strength was the eight page statement of demands from 12 of the principal agricultural commodity organizations of the country as laid down on the desk of every senator.

The organizations, headed by the American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Grange, asserted the agricultural rates in the bill were insufficient, and demanded 27 increases above the increases already granted on farm commodities by the house bill and the proposed senate bill.

Among their unexpected demands were the following:

An increase to 37 cents a pound on raw wool compared with 34 cents in the house bill and 31 cents in the senate bill and existing law.

A duty of six cents a pound on green cattle hides and 10 cents on dry hides as compared with 10 per cent ad valorem in the house and senate bills. Hides are on the free list in the existing law.

Not less than the 2.76 cents a pound house rate on sugar, as compared with 2.20 in the senate bill and 1.76 in the existing law.

Flaxseed, 84 cents a bushel as compared with 63 cents in the house bill; 56 cents in the senate bill and 40 cents in existing law.

The petition made no mention of industrial rates in the bill, stating the special session of congress had been called for the purpose of enacting farm relief legislation and that further tariff increases were necessary if the farmer is to get relief.

MISS ANDERSON CROWNS GODDESS

Brainerd Beauty Presides at Coronation of "Hera" at Closing Day of State Fair

St. Paul, Sept. 9.—(UP)—The Minnesota state fair grounds hustled with activity today as exhibitors and fair officials packed up and shipped away the livestock and agricultural displays from last week's show.

One of the outstanding events on the last day of the fair was the crowning of Miss Patricia Cashman, Orona, as "Hera" goddess of the skies. Miss Cashman was chosen from the high honor from a field of 74 Minnesota girls, queen of their respective regions, and the crown was placed on her head by Miss Margaret Anderson, of Brainerd, recently named, Miss Minnesota.

Luella Rixy of Wheaton, was adjudged the second most beautiful girl.

Attendance at the fair this year was 426,335 or about 3,000 less than in 1928. The drop was said to be due to the excessive heat of the first part of the week and cold rains on the last few days.

County Entries Place

Crow Wing county entries at the Minnesota state fair did exceptionally well, the county booth placing third in merit and beauty in the northern section and boys and girls winning in 4-H club work.

County Agent E. G. Roth returned to the city Sunday after supervising the county booth at the fair.

In 4-H club work, the entry of Gail Prushek of Perry Lake won first in second year Guernsey, the entry of Florence Jones of Bay Lake township won fourth in first year purebred Guernsey, the entry of Ed. Smith, Lake Edwards township won 11th in grade Guernsey while the entry of Milton Straus, Little Pine township placed second in Hampshire pig.

Lila Shobe of Brainerd and Berrie Leonard, Long Lake competed in the spelling contest. Winners have not been announced yet.

Elmer Rasmussen, Pequot, Lawrence Winquist, Deerwood attended the Farm Boys Camp. Ladonnah Cram and Elsie Currier, Deerwood formed a canning team and Lois Flansburg St. Mathias, competed in garment making. Nadine Johnson, of Allen township, who competed in the bread baking contest, was the winner of a bracelet awarded at the 4-H club banquet.

More than 1200 Boys and Girls club members from all parts of the state competed.

ADOPT RULES FOR SCHOOL COURTS

Board of Education Formulates Rules to Govern Play at Tennis Courts

Rules to govern play on the public school tennis courts as adopted by the Brainerd Board of Education Friday evening are announced as follows:

1. Primarily, the courts are for pupils in actual attendance at the school where the court is located. Grade pupils at a given school shall have playing preference over high school pupils residing in a given locality.

2. The grade children at each school may be divided into two groups, a junior group and a senior group, the junior group being those under 11 years of age and the senior group those over 11 years of age. Specified hours of the day or days of the week may be determined to provide for playing preference for the junior and senior groups.

3. A tennis ground committee at each school consisting of the principal, one teacher appointed by the principal, and several of the older pupils of the given school, together with a member appointed by the Parent Teachers association, shall constitute a managing committee at each school to enforce the rules, look after the courts and equipment and, from time to time, suggest necessary changes or amendments to the rules.

4. The tennis courts shall not be used by either pupils or non-pupils on school days while school is in actual session. The principal and janitor are authorized to enforce this provision with the aid of the truant officer, if it should become necessary.

5. In order to accommodate the maximum number of children, doubles must be played in preference to singles in case other players are in waiting and the sets shall end after one game when deuce is reached in a deuce game.

6. When two or more players are in waiting to play, only one set may be played by the same person until all on the waiting list have had their turn to play.

7. These rules should be read to the pupils at each building and posted in the hallway at each building. Any willful violation of the rules should be reported promptly to the principal of the building.

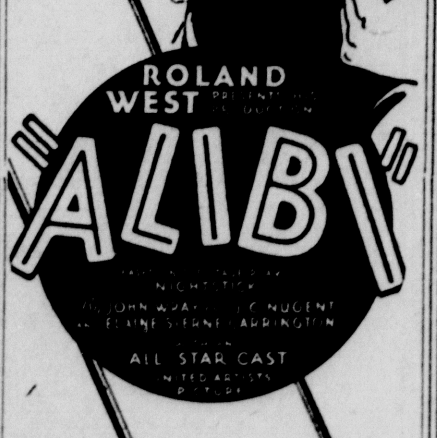

Any injury to the courts or equipment should be promptly reported to the principal of the building.

9. On Saturday mornings the junior group of pupils, at a given school, shall have the precedence or right-of-way over the senior group. On Saturday afternoons the senior group shall have precedence as to playing rights. High school pupils residing in the district may have equal playing rights with senior grade pupils on Saturday afternoon but subject to the rules and regulations for the court.

Buddhist Priest, Sans

Pants, Barred on Boat

Colombo, Ceylon.—A fierce controversy is raging in this country because it is alleged a British shipping company refused a Buddhist priest passage on its line from Colombo to Rangoon unless he wore trousers.

The priest, it is said, applied for first-class passage but was refused when he declined to wear trousers on the voyage. The supporters of the Buddhist priest threaten, if satisfaction is not obtained, to take the matter up with several million Buddhists who have heretofore patronized this line with cargo and passage.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

September 9, 1929

There was another burglary last night and it is a case where the member of this stripe of man is no respecter of place or person. It is believed the burglary last night when the saloon of Louis Nelson was entered, was committed by one and the same individuals who entered the Y. M. C. A. the night before. An entrance was effected by a dinky little window leading to the cellar. Once in the cellar the upstairs was of easy access. The intruders went in, took $20 out of the cash drawer and got out the same way they came. The police have suspicions that some young men about the city did the work and some rigid investigations will follow.

Mrs. Mary Cushner died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rosini, this morning after a long illness with a complication of diseases. The funeral will probably be held on Saturday morning. Mrs. Cushner is an old resident of this city and is very well known in the vicinity where she lives, near the mill.

Jerry Flickwir left this afternoon and will visit in the east for about a month. He will go to Buffalo and from there to the world's fair and back to Chicago and Beardstown, Ill., where he will visit for a time.

Mrs. G. W. Eastman, Edwin Blake her son, and Mrs. G. F. Mitchell left this afternoon for the Twin Cities. Master Edwin Blake is going to enter Shattuck school at Faribault for the year. Mr. Blake went down with him.

Miss Lucy Ferrington, of Ypsilanti, Mich., who has been the guest of Miss Edna Stickney, returned home this afternoon.

The Bachelor Maids will meet with Miss Kitty Keene tomorrow afternoon.

President G. D. LaBar, of the First National, returned this noon from Cass Lake where he went to let the contract for the rebuilding of a part of the First National bank building there which was damaged by an explosion some time ago.

One Point of View

Love is most sincere when it loves according to needs, and not according to merit.

HARBIN, THE CITY RAILROADS BUILT

Thriving Town Put on Map by Russians.

Washington.—Harbin, China, which has figured prominently in the record-breaking travels of world gliders, recently sprang into the international spotlight when a group of Chinese raided the Soviet consulate.

"Harbin is almost as Russian as it is Chinese," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society, "although the city lies in central Manchuria about 200 miles from the nearest border line of Siberia.

"In fact, the Russians really put Harbin on the map. Up to the latter part of the 'nineties,' the site of Harbin was a wild desolate region with a few fishermen's huts marking the only human habitation. Then in 1896 the Russian builders of the Trans-Siberian railroad, bent upon reaching Vladivostok, sought to cross Manchuria rather than to build a much longer line entirely in Russian territory. A treaty between China and Russia made the short line through Harbin possible.

Chinese See Possibilities.

"Harbin was really born when Chinese railroad interests saw the feasibility of a line running southward from the Russian railroad. The site of Harbin was chosen as the junction point. Passengers from Europe now may travel by rail to Harbin; thence to Mukden, the great Manchurian market place; and from there over any of three routes to important cities of the Orient. One line leads to Tientsin and Peking (formerly Peking), another to Dairen and Port Arthur, where passenger boats sail for southern China ports; another line bisects the Korean peninsula with one of its termini at Fusan, where a boat ride across Chosen Strait will put the traveler into Japan proper.

"Born of the railroads, Harbin has also been reared by the railroads. Before the World war a railroad-employed telephone operator handled all telephone calls; the railroads built and maintained hospitals and schools, and even built the city's churches. In recent years, however, a portion of the local administration has been placed in the hands of the populace.

"After but three decades, Harbin boasts a population of more than 100,000. Some of its streets in the old portion of the city in many respects resemble those of an American boom town with its bordering one-story shops. The gay-colored signs in Chinese and Russian attract the traveler's eye; but carts, droskies and loaded donkeys, mired in the hub-deep mud, occupy the attention of pedestrians and shopkeepers most of the time.

"The railroad divides the so-called New Town from the Wharf district. On the New Town side, the traveler alights from a train at a station that many cities of America with more than Harbin's population would be proud to possess. There are some fine streets in the New Town district; on them are large, modern government buildings as well as structures that appear to have been erected when Harbin was much younger.

Automobiles Gaining.

"The drosky with its horses framed in bell-hung arches is still popular in Harbin, but the taxicab and private automobile are available at the railroad station and at the hotels.

"When a passenger alights from the train in this Chinese town, he is likely to hear more Russian than Chinese. Most of the Harbin hotels whose representatives besiege the traveler at the station are Russian or Japanese owned. Unless the English-speaking traveler can speak Russian, Chinese, Japanese, or a little French or German, he has difficulty in making his wishes known.

"The Wharf district across the railroad from the New Town and bordering the Sungari river is Harbin's business section. Here the traveler gets a glimpse of the bustling commercial life of the city; for Harbin has become a great market through which commercial traffic between Siberia and China flows unceasingly.

"The river front, when yellow soy beans are being shipped, is a mass of small sailing vessels, filled to the gunwales with huge sacks. Beans from these boats are destined to local and foreign consumers. Most interesting of the agricultural products seen in Harbin by the foreign traveler, however, are the Chinese cabbages which resemble huge stalks of celery."

Our Marching Agriculture

IF the westward tide of American development has stopped, agriculture, in some respects, is still keeping up its march toward the setting sun, according to a report on The Mechanization of Agriculture issued by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

"Accompanying the increased use of power machinery," the report states, "there has been a considerable shift in the acreages of various crops from the older producing centers to other regions better suited to the use of such machinery."

"In 1918 the cotton-growing states along the Atlantic seaboard had 28.2 per cent of the total cotton acreage. The southern Mississippi Valley states had 32.2 per cent of the total, and Texas and Oklahoma 39.5 per cent. In 1928 the cotton acreage in the Atlantic seaboard states had declined to 18.0 per cent of the total. The Mississippi Valley states had 32.3 per cent, practically the same as ten years earlier, but the acreage in Texas and Oklahoma had increased to 48.9.

"Similarly the wheat acreage has shifted westward during the past ten years. Between 1918 and 1928 the wheat acreage in North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas increased from 27,861,000 acres to 38,438,000. During the same period the acreage in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and Minnesota declined from 12,402,000 to 5,317,000.

"Corn acreages have been reduced considerably in the southeastern states and increased in the corn belt since the World War."

Beef Sale Fund to Buy New Sires

HAVING outlived their usefulness, the original pure-bred sires purchased by business men of Brainerd for dairy farmers of Crow Wing county, have been sold on the beef market at prices ranging from $100 to $180, says E. G. Roth, county agent, who as secretary of the Pure-bred Sires Association has had charge of most of the details of the campaign started in 1924.

Proceeds of the sale have been used to replace the old sires with yearling bulls, dairymen of the different blocks making up the difference in prices, if any, and donating such sums to the association. Present plans are to carry on the campaign indefinitely.

"The association has achieved something worth while in that it has furnished good pure-bred sires to small farmers who have only a few cows and cannot afford high priced sires," said Mr. Roth.

"Some of the sires are used by 12 to 14 farmers who do not have more than six cows each for breeding purposes. It is these men who have profited most from the project."

Dairying, given an impetus by better cows, is bringing wealth to the farmers of Crow Wing county. Better cows are better producers. Labor is lessened, output increased, better milk produced with pure-bred cows than with the scrubs which first held sway in the county.

Sparing the Rod

THE Calumet, Mich., News says that an Indiana judge, before whom appeared two small boys charged with the theft of $18 from a filling station, waxed eloquent on the decay of parental discipline. Said he:

"What you boys need is more rigid discipline at home. If you were my boys I'd get a fifteen-foot elm pole and I'd wear it off clear to the handle on both of you."

This judicial dictum, doubtless, will strike a popular chord. Yet it occurs to us that the judge is a bit confused. Proper home discipline does not, by any manner or means, go hand in hand with corporal punishment.

All that any man has to go on in this connection is his own memory. And we recall many boyhood playmates who were extremely well-behaved but who were not paddled from one year's end to another; and we also remember that the worst boy in our town was a lad who was soundly whipped for the slightest infractions of parental code.

It takes more than a strong right arm to make a good father. It is about time to stop insisting that all our ills would be solved if more children were only flogged.

Hogging Highways

SUNDAY and holiday driving finds State Trunk Highway No. 27 crowded and the accidents happen when traffic weaves in and out to get ahead, or when drivers attempt to run two abreast and crowd off traffic.

We wish that the State Highway Patrol would have several men on No. 27 between Elk River and St. Cloud where this kind of pushing, swerving traffic run is mostly in evidence.

The news of today mentions two fatal accidents which occurred in that territory. Other accidents, also due to crowding drivers from their rightful traffic line, occurred last night as the wind and rain storm raged.

BEAR stories continue to crop out around us. At Duluth a bear broke through a window into the lobby of a hotel. The bell-hop was not around when some yelled, "Front." At Deerwood last week Clarence Luck, 14 shot a bear when it entered the front yard of his home. Here at Brainerd the only obstreperous wild life visiting town has been a lynx, several muskrats and a blow snake.

CHINA, which has been in an uproar off and on for some time, is going to meet peace half way. It has designated four new districts in Honan province to be known in Chinese as the District of Universal Peace, the District of Equality, the District of Liberty and the District of Democracy.

A JOHNSON CITY, N. Y., policeman fell on his fist and fractured a rib. That reminds us of the M. & I. brakeman who was hit on the head by a log and broke his ankle.

THE Red Cross is urging the local chapter to be host to a Regional Conference here October 11. Absence of many officials of the chapter has militated against considering acceptance.

EXPLAINING THE MATTER

Judge—The plaintiff says he lent you a milk-pan, which you broke, and he claims damages.

Farmer Jones—There's not a truthful word in what he says. In the first place, he didn't lend me a pan at all. Secondly, the pan was broken when I had it; and thirdly, the pan was whole when I gave it back.—Vancouver Province.

What Barbecue Meant

Gwendolyn's boy friend knows she isn't very bright but this one knocked him rather flat.

"I'm opening up a barbecue out on Boston road next week," he told her.

"Gee, that's swell," she replied.

"But who's going to get 'way out there to get a shave and haircut."

A Cold Douche

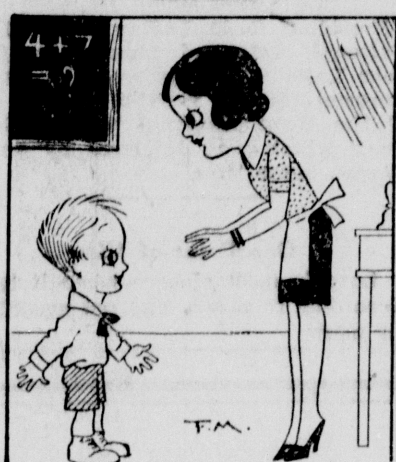

He (dreamily)—Would that I were a star in yon heavens.

She (jelly)—I'd rather see you a comet.

He (tenderly)—Why?

She—Then you'd only come around once every fifty years.

Pupil—Polly Neeshur? Don't know nothing, teacher—she don't come to this school.

Not Wanted

The girls were talking, as girls sometimes do.

"Are you happy with your new fiancé?" asked one.

"No, I'm not. No one has tried to take him away from me."

Out Broom!

The mistress stepped into the kitchen for a moment after the party.

"Now be careful of that china, Bridget, it's very old."

"Nivir fret, mum. It ain't heavy enough to hurt if it does fall on me."

Asker—What happened to that wonderful cook you had?

Teller—The ice company moved our ice man to a new route and he took her with him.

Judge—I know you committed the theft exactly as I have described it.

Accused—Unfortunately, no, but I will follow your methods next time, sir.

WIFE DIDN'T CHOOSE

She—I heard Bill was running around with a blonde baby.

He—He's through. His wife didn't choose to let him run.

Mother—I heard daughter say she had one in her stocking.

FARM POULTRY

FLOCK HISTORY IS GUIDE IN CULLING

Always Better to Improve Production by Care.

"In culling poultry the history of the flock should be the first important consideration," say the extension specialists in poultry husbandry at the Ohio State university. "If the flock as a whole has been laying heavily throughout the entire year, culling should be comparatively easy, as the good birds will show evidence of high production, while the few poor birds will be outstanding, showing very definite evidences of low production."

Throughout the year, the flock should be kept free from parasites such as red mites, lice, or intestinal worms, or is improperly housed or cared for, the culling will be very difficult, for many of the birds that are really worth keeping will be questionable, due to their condition. Under such circumstances the first step should be to correct conditions, and allow the good birds to come back and show their value, which will cause the poor birds to be more easily recognized.

"It is always better to improve average production by better management rather than by culling, which decreases the number of birds and cuts down the possible earning power of the flock."

Get Rid of Parasites on Chickens in Flock

The hens have enough to bother with in the summer with the hot weather without having to fight lice and mites in addition. The flock owner can do a great deal to help the hens get rid of these pests.

There are various remedies on the market which can be used, or a drug known as sodium fluoride can be bought at the drug store and can be put on the hens, applying it on the back, head, throat, on the breast, around the vent, between each thigh and the breast and on each wing. This is a rather tedious process, although it will get all the lice.

Within the last year and a half, however, it has been found that painting Black Leaf 40 on the perches will rid a flock of lice. This is easy and effective.

Mites are a worse pest than lice, since these little bugs stay in the cracks and crevices around the nests, droppings boards and perches during the day and get on the birds at night, at which time they suck the hen's blood. These can best be fought by using a strong disinfectant on the nests, roosts and droppings boards.

If these pests—lice and mites—are allowed to remain on the birds, they will sap the chicken's vitality and will hinder egg production considerably.

Ducks and Geese Are Fed Pretty Much Alike

Ducks and geese are fed just about alike. They should be kept warm and dry and fed about four or five times per day. All young water fowl should have soft feeds, that is to say, wet mash mixed as follows: Three parts yellow corn meal, four parts bran, one part red dog or low-grade flour by weight. Add to this 10 per cent of high-grade meat scraps, 1 per cent of fine sand, and mix with water or milk so that it is quite moist but not sloppy. Feed this every two or three hours for two weeks.

Care for Chicks

Raising good chicks is about the most important thing on a poultry farm. That to a large extent determines your profits. If you neglect the chicks by crowding them too closely, by letting the house become filthy and the soil in bad shape, you may produce weak chicks that do not live well and lay well. It is comparatively easy to grow good chicks if you are willing to do the necessary work of properly caring for the chicks.

Turkeys on Upgrade

Turkey raising is on the upgrade, now that the blackhead bugaboo has been done away with. And the turkey growers are getting the marketing system down to a fine point, too. Six turkey marketing associations have just been formed in various parts of Colorado, and the next thing will be a statewide pool. Profits received by members of turkey marketing pools in the West last year were very pleasing—that's why new pools are being formed to handle this year's crop.

Scratching Shed

In some of the warmer sections of the country, fowls will prefer to spend their nights in the trees and on outdoor roosts but severe storms, driving snows or heavy rains will in most instances, send them into the houses. It is the storm more than the cold that the hen objects to, and for this reason, if no other, a scratching shed where the fowls are sheltered from the wind, should be provided where the layers can sing and keep busy during the entire day.

Old Educational Idea

One of the first records we have of the student exchange idea among the universities of the world is dated 1343, at which time a home was established at Bologna for the Spanish students attending university there. It was a common custom during the Fourteenth, Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries for all of the larger countries to establish residences in Rome for their respective students.

BRAINERD FRUIT CO.
WHOLESALE

HERE ARE TESTED WAYS TO CAN PEACHES

Hot Pack Method

This method combines the advantages of the Open-Kettle and Cold Pack Methods. The fruit has the same texture throughout the year, and bacteria are killed in the pre-cooking process. Also, the fruit is kept from discoloring. In case of peaches, remove skins by blanching (unless ripe enough to do so without this process); in canning prunes, simply pit and halve—do not remove skins. Add fruit to boiling syrup—which has been made from $\frac{1}{2}$ to $\frac{3}{4}$ cup sugar for each cup of water and has been boiled 5 minutes. Precook for 5 minutes at simmering point. Fill container while boiling hot, and "paddle" the sides before placing cover on, and process immediately. Proceed 12-15 minutes; seal immediately. It is not necessary to add extra juice.

Cold Pack Method

Prepare the fruit carefully, selecting it with attention to ripeness. In case of peaches remove skin by blanching, pit and halve. If prunes are to be canned, it is only necessary to wash and pit the fruit. Do not remove the skin of prunes. Make a syrup of sugar and water, cup for cup, and let boil 5 minutes. Fill the jars with hot syrup, taking care to "paddle" well around the sides to allow air bubbles to escape, and place jars in the hot water bath. The water around the jars should boil 15 to 25 minutes, depending upon the firmness of the fruit. Jars should be sealed immediately upon removal from water. When cool, wrap in paper and store in a dark, dry place.

OPEN KETTLE—Cook fruit in a medium syrup, in a sauce pan, until tender. Place in hot sterile jars, fill with boiling syrup and seal immediately. If desired, the syrup the fruit is cooked in may be retained and used for jelly making, and fresh syrup poured over the cooked fruit.

OVEN METHOD—Wash and pack fruit into hot sterile jars to within 1 inch of the top. Put sterile rubbers in position. Pour over the fruit the boiling hot syrup to cover. "Paddle" to remove air bubbles. Adjust lid loosely. Place in oven at 275° for one hour. Remove and seal immediately.

PRESSURE COOKER—Follow general pressure cooker directions. Sterilize at 5 to 10 pounds pressure for 10 minutes.

WADENA PRAISES AUXILIARY BAND

Brainerd Ladies Fill 40th Engagement at Wadena County Fair; Plan Louisville Trip

Expressions of praise were tendered the American Legion Auxiliary band members of Brainerd by hundreds who heard them play Friday and Saturday at the Wadena county fair.

The 23 Brainerd musicians gave several drill exhibitions and concerts as well as playing the music for the grandstand programs.

The fair engagement completed its 40th public appearance since the band was organized in March 1928 under the direction of Miss Edith Drexler.

Out of the state engagements included a trip last year to San Antonio, Texas and will include a trip to Louisville, Ky., for the coming national convention of the Legion.

Roosevelt Beach

Last week there was a big time at Roosevelt Beach on Platte Lake as all cottages were full at all times and some very fine catches of fish were made, some bass being caught that weighed 8 pounds.

Last Sunday the chapel in church was very crowded and there is need for a larger church.

"Girl Overboard"

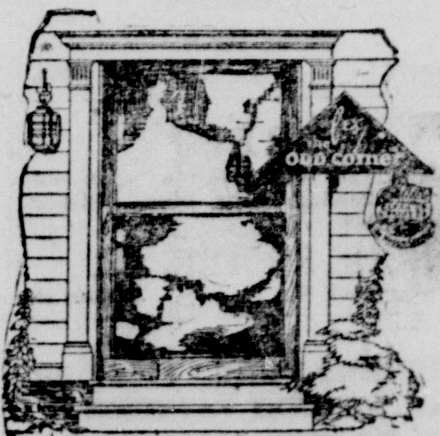

Mary Philbin's role in "Girl Overboard" which is now at the Lyceum theatre, is one of her most exciting and versatile portrayals. Opposite her appears Fred Mackaye, while the supporting cast includes Otis Harlan, Francis McDonald, Edmund Breese and Wilfrid North. Wesley Ruggles directed.

Freak Cats

Ring-tail cats are cats having crooks in their tails. They are freaks and in the United States cat shows are penalized. Such freaks appear often in Siamese cats, and it is claimed in Siam that these tails are produced through inbreeding.

Flint pickets were used to reap grain in Palestine up to about 1250 B. C., when iron sickles came into use.

A New Door needed on the Back Porch

The Back Door looks a little neglected, doesn't it? For one thing, the screening has rusted and fallen away in spots. Doesn't keep the flies out. And the delivery boys and the ice man have soiled the woodwork. It does look messy. It isn't much of a job to put in new netting and to paint the main door and the frame of the other. Let's get busy. What do you say?

TO ESTIMATE COST OF SHORTER ROUTE

Commissioners Instruct Engineer to Report on Cost of Proposed Road to Pine Beach

LAKE LEVEL REQUEST HEARD
Board to Consider and Deal With Cullen Lake Chain Proposal at Next Meeting

Consideration of the construction of a new route to the Pine Beach golf course on Gull Lake and the establishment of a definite level for the Cullen Lakes constituted the major items of business at the county commissioners' meeting Saturday.

County Highway Engineer Walter M. Murphy was instructed to prepare an estimate of the cost of work necessary to complete the road to Pine Beach by way of highway No. 19, past Red Sand Lake and report at the next meeting.

The proposed new road would join the so called Gull Lake road about three and a half miles north of Brainerd. It would shorten the route, it was said, by about eight miles. The present route generally used is by way of highway No. 2. The new road, it was declared by John W. Harrison, R. E. Wyett, and F. H. Gruenbogen would be a boon to traffic to the new Brainerd-Pine Beach hotel when completed and would materially benefit Brainerd.

What is believed to be the start of various similar requests throughout the county was that made by cottagers on the Cullen Lakes chain who requested the commissioners to approve a plan for retaining the waters on the three lakes at a definite level.

Frank B. Keller, former mayor of St. Paul and spokesman for the delegation, urged the board to take steps to retain the water in the lakes and thereby protect the county's future in the tourist trade.

The commissioners will further consider the request at its next meeting.

CHURCH WELL FILLED

Full Gospel Assembly Revival Meetings Not Interfered With by Weather

(Contributed)

In spite of the wet and disagreeable weather the Full Gospel Assembly church was well filled last night with folk who were thoroughly interested in the message delivered by Evangelist V. R. Jackson on the "Soon Return of the Lord Jesus."

Rev. Jackson quoted John 14:13 Acts 1:10 and first Thes. 4:16-18 to show that Jesus himself promised He would come again, that the same Jesus that went away would come, and how He would come.

The evangelist quoted other scriptures also to show that the coming of Lord should be expected any moment.

The services will continue each night at 8 o'clock. There will be another divine healing service Tuesday night and a meeting especially for the young people Friday night.

COOL WEATHER SPEEDS CANNING

Brainerd Housewives in Midst of Canning With Cool Weather and Peaches Arriving

With the canning season at its height the Brainerd housewife is taking advantage of the cool weather to complete this important task. Many a housewife has found that Elberta peaches from the Yakima Valley are proving of the greatest importance in filling her empty jars. Scarcity and high prices of most other fruits, following a short strawberry season, puts peaches at the top of her list.

Although crop shortages of peaches in other sections of the country have been noted, the Elberta crop in the Yakima Valley is excellent. Prices are slightly higher than during last year's unusual fruit season, but are still reasonable.

The canning of peaches, fortunately, is found to be very easy and effective, and results are certainly pleasing when the jars are opened during the winter.

The price of sugar is low this year, and every woman who owns half a dozen jars is interested in canning.

all the fruit possible as an economy measure.

Shipments of Yakima peaches are arriving regularly.

Delicate, exquisitely flavored Elberta peaches... especially those grown in the Yakima Valley, are known the world over for fruit-perfection. Canned, made into preserves or marmalade, they will be a delightful addition to many menus.

Blue Blood And Red

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Eddie Regan, once a member of a New York gang, has escaped to Virginia, where he meets Marian Thorndike. He realizes the difference between Marian and himself and determines to win her love. Bernice Veressi, "gang girl," who was in love with Eddie, is forgotten in Eddie's dreams of Marian. Penfield Paradine, last member of an aristocratic Southern family, whom Eddie befriends, dies and leaves Eddie all his possessions. Eddie works hard on the farm. Suddenly finding himself alone with Marian, who has come to him for help after being thrown off her horse, he kisses her and tells her of his love. Marian accuses herself of leading him on and tells him it is hopeless, but jealously inquires as to the other women in his life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIV.

THERE was no eloquence in his speech; the words came with nervous jerks as he was aware that he was lacking in the power of any spoken romance that would warm her heart. Merely, in his stumbling fashion he was trying to set before her the one fact that obsessed him.

Nor was he disappointed that she did not love him. An easy victory had been no part of his expectations. Her lips, warm and quivering upon his, had not seemed like the lips of other girls and he was not disappointed in thinking that a kiss, however ecstatic, bridged the gulf between them; but his mind held resolutely to the conviction that behind her ethereal beauty and poised culture she was fundamentally human and that, in time, he might become worthy in her eyes. This, he realized, was sheer stubbornness of purpose on his part, but without it, all life would be a barren vacuum.

"You seem so terribly sincere that you make me ashamed of myself," she told him. "Of course the whole thing is an impossibility and always will be—that's why I feel so badly."

"It might be impossible if what I feel wasn't permanent," he responded, "but it is—the way I feel about you is indestructible and I don't believe I would have a feeling like that if it meant nothing."

His thoughts were carrying them into a region so purely speculative that Marian felt a necessity of returning to the purely practical.

"You've got to get this out of your head or it will do you harm," she said. "You'll be better off if you forget all about it."

"It won't do any harm and I can't forget about it," he told her, firmly. "If you don't want to hear any more about it I'll keep still."

"I think that might be better," she said, slowly. "Still we could be friends perhaps—"

"And how!" he declared, with a flashing return of his New York vernacular.

"But not," she added, "if it is going to put both of us under a strain. I'll always feel guilty when I look at you and I'll know that you are carrying around a sort of love-delusion in your mind. I'm afraid, Eddie Regan, that we've got ourselves into hot water."

"I like it," he said. "And look—tell me honestly—it doesn't make you exactly miserable, does it, to know that there's a guy like me worshipping you?"

For the first time she spoke to him sharply.

"I'm through talking about it," he declared. "I want you to get the idea out of your head that because I became ridiculous for a moment and we kissed that anything exists between us or can exist between us. I'm not going to worry my head with it all, and for your own good, I advise you to quit thinking about me at all."

Her tone was almost vindictive and the sudden sharpness of it, stabbed through Eddie's breast like an icicle. What he had feared had come true—he had pressed forward too far and too rapidly.

"That's O. K. with me," he said, forcing a crispness into his voice.

"I'm not crazy about forcing myself on anybody where I am not wanted. You're right—I've been a fool to go on like this while you were sitting there knocked out from your fall. You ought to be home and in bed right now. I am going to hitch up the horse to the buggy if you will let me—unless you want me to telephone your father now."

"No," she said, quietly, "I'll ride home with you."

There was the sound of an automobile in the yard. They looked at each other and both were slightly and uncomfortably startled.

So completely had Eddie and Marian been engrossed with the love-issue that the sound of an automobile with its engine roaring outside the door jarred them both with surprise. Eddie was on his feet instantly and the girl sat upright in her chair.

"Don't you move," he said to her, with swift concern for her bruised condition. A voice from outside called out a halloo. Eddie sat a lighted candle in the living room and stepped on the porch. A head was thrust out of the car and a full, noisy voice demanded:

"Say? I'm out looking for Miss Thorndike. Her horse went home with an empty saddle this evening and everybody's out looking for her. Did you see her pass your place this afternoon?"

"She is here," Eddie said. The voice boomed with surprise.

"The Hell!" A bulky body climbed out of the automobile. "Is she hurt?"

"Not much. Come on inside." The man came up to the porch, a tall robust figure, a young man with a full face and eyes that protruded slightly in a manner to re-

MIGHT BE A CATCH IN IT

"I don't know whether to use this testimonial or not," mused the ad writer.

"What's the matter with it?" demanded the advertising manager.

"Well," explained the boss, "the man writes: 'I used to have three bald spots on the top of my head, but since using a bottle of your hair restorer I have only one!'"—Stray Stories.
